I have to say I didn't think BabyFirstTV was going to be "all that" but . . . My 2 month old grandson J.J. sat in his swing and looked at BabyFirstTV for almost an hour. He cooed, grinned and really seemed to be responding to the TV. I know TV is no replacement for human contact and interaction but now along with lullabys, peek-a-boo and wind up musical toys, BabyFirstTV gives me another selection for J.J.'s entertainment. Thank you for taking the risk and launching BabyFirstTV. Just my thoughts.

Do you know that I have been passing over this channel until yesterday because I figured it was for "babies"? But you know, yesterday I didn't realize my 8 yr-old had turned it on and left it on for his little brother that morning before going to school. And I wondered why he was quiet after we got back? He was hypnotized and repeating the letters and numbers, etc. I couldn't believe it! I'm glad because he will have to take speech therapy when he starts pre-K next year and maybe this will help him get a jump start during the summer. I noticed your channel really repeats everything several times and emphasizes the phonics very well. I have not seen that before on any other education or kids channels. Good job! Finally something that is not geared to teaching kids rude talking and hyper behavior. Thank you so much.

I think television is a wonderful learning tool for children! My daughter is captivated with BabyFirstTV and really enjoys when the woman in I Can Sign demonstrates driving the car (the sign for car).

The funny thing is, my 3yr old, 5yr old, and 10yr old love to watch this channel. It's such a break from the hyperactive crazy stuff that's on the other kid channels. This is a safe, soothing place where my children can learn at a gentle pace.

There are lots of times when I am watching other children's programming and wishing that I knew how to better interact with him [my son]. I'm a first time mom, so it is hard to figure out how to play with him or how to help to stimulate his growth or his development. That is why the captions underneath, that help highlight what you can be doing to further his experience, are really helpful.

I love the new BabyFirstTV. My 18 month old really enjoys the movement, and the music. The sign language, has helped me communicate with her more and understand what she wants. I am glad to see that you have made this channel just for little tikes. Thank you!

My baby watches BabyFirstTV and likes seeing the programs with real people and animals. I think Picture Pad is a really great concept.

My daughter reacts to the BabyFirstTV logo every time it comes on the screen, and calls out "baby." My older children watched other channels, and I'm concerned about the advertisements they have. BabyFirstTV doesn't have that. Plus, the category descriptions give more dimension to the programs for parents. I'm excited to see the parents programs that are coming soon... it will be perfect for nursing during the night.

BabyFirstTV is a nice alternative to other networks that don't offer much for younger kids after 6pm. It's very colorful, bright and engaging. I like the simple, short segments and the on demand features will help me fit the programs into my schedule. I think TV is a great tool if you use it correctly.

I really liked the interactive subtitles and color coding on BabyFirstTV. As a new mom, it can sometimes be overwhelming to know what is appropriate and what's not appropriate. This made it very simple to know that this program is helping my child learn some developmental skills and I didn't have to make a lot of decisions on that. It was plain and clear."
